So, we need to extract the value for this particular string, which is ""(untitled)(Details)"" and then, from the extracted value, we need to extract the ""(untitled)"", which would be the value for the resource we're interested in. Here's a handy example of how to use this : `def find_at_path(path, resource): for line in contents: if line == resource: return line if line.startswith(path): return line` But I'll leave it up to you to see how to apply it to your problem. There's probably a way of writing a ""regex"", but I prefer to use ""line.split()"" instead. A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of the safety and efficacy of dinitrosyl iron complex (DNIC) for treating iron deficiency anemia in children with Crohn's disease. Iron deficiency is a common complication of Crohn's disease and iron supplementation can be effective in reversing iron deficiency anemia. Iron complexes have been used as an oral iron supplement, but no data are available for their use in patients with Crohn's disease. This study was conducted to evaluate the safety and efficacy of orally administered dinitrosyl iron complex (DNIC) in the treatment of iron deficiency anemia in children with Crohn's disease. Thirty-three patients, age 5-18 yr, entered this randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled, parallel-group study. Study drugs were administered at baseline and at intervals of 2 wk for a total of 4 wk. All patients received oral ferrous sulfate. Seventeen patients received DNIC for 4 wk and 16 received placebo for 4 wk. DNIC and placebo were equally well tolerated. The iron status of both groups improved throughout the treatment period. Improvement in hemoglobin concentration, serum ferritin and soluble transferrin receptor concentrations, and questionnaire scores were statistically significantly greater in the DNIC group. No subjects in the DNIC group developed a serious adverse event. We conclude that DNIC is well-tolerated and effective for treatment of iron deficiency anemia in children with Crohn's disease.◆
